This week in Year 4

In Year Four, we couldn't think of a better way to think like scientists during British Science Week than by presenting our own weather forecast on a wet and blustery Thursday!

We were fascinated to discover how weather is predicted, learning that weather balloons, satellites and weather stations all play an important part. Meteorologists gather data to understand what is happening in our atmosphere.

After watching a real weather forecast, we identified the vocabulary used to describe the miserable conditions. We then created our own weather broadcasts to prepare the public for the day ahead.

This week in Nursery

This week Nursery are exploring signs of Spring! First, we have learned about the changes we can expect to see outside at this time of the year.

Today we have explored our natural environment outside, identifying flowers and other plants with informational books, as well as drawing what we could see.

We are all hoping for the sun to stay out this week so that we can start to plant some lovely seeds and observe how they grow!
